Churchill Education Hits 31,000 Qualifications Issued Milestone

BRISBANE, AUSTRALIA – 25 FEBRUARY 2026 – Churchill Education is proud to announce a significant milestone: 31,000 nationally recognised qualifications issued to professionals across Australia.

The achievement marks a powerful moment in the organisation’s ongoing mission to help experienced professionals gain formal recognition for the skills and knowledge they’ve built throughout their careers.

For more than two decades, Churchill Education has specialised in Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL), supporting mid-career professionals, managers, business owners, and individuals transitioning into new civilian careers after Defence and Police service to convert real-world experience into nationally recognised qualifications, without unnecessary study.

“This milestone represents 31,000 individual career breakthroughs,” said Churchill Education managing director, Matthew Tenkate. “Each qualification reflects someone who chose to back themselves and formalise the experience they already had.”

Demand for RPL continues to grow as more professionals look to advance, pivot industries, negotiate salary increases, meet licensing requirements, or step confidently into leadership roles. For those exiting Defence and Police service, RPL provides a structured pathway to translate years of operational experience into qualifications recognised in the civilian workforce.

Rather than starting from scratch, RPL allows individuals to build on existing experience, saving time and accelerating career progression.

Churchill Education works closely with clients to guide them through the process, ensuring evidence is mapped correctly and efficiently to nationally recognised training standards. The result is a streamlined, accredited pathway that respects experience while meeting compliance requirements.

The 31,000-qualification milestone reflects both client trust and the increasing recognition across industries that experience has measurable value.

As workforce mobility and career change become more common, Churchill Education remains committed to providing accessible, supportive pathways for Australians seeking formal recognition of their expertise.
